COP 21, COP 30 etc, all these grand gatherings are as useless as they are ridiculous.

Decarbonize, decarbonize, and all that will remain is wind.

It's simple: the Western economy was practically bankrupt. So, to revive it, everything had to be destroyed and then rebuilt. Usually, this is done with a war (EUROSR vs. Russia, here we come!), but this time they've thought of something else: the climate scam that mandates a complete electric upgrade. And of course, to achieve this, they're collapsing the economy, for example, the European automotive industry. So, supposedly to avoid total collapse, they're actually causing it. The unelected, parasitic Green Khmer Rouge of the EUROSR.

Answer daniel-thirty-eight

Do you believe our leaders want to destroy in order to rebuild? No, in my opinion, they want to destroy in order to maintain their dominance. So, yes, once chaos is established, there might be reconstruction… But with whom? On what basis? The French want to hold onto their meager gains, even if it means being enslaved. Therefore, they will be enslaved and poor. There will be no reconstruction because that requires hard work and toil before prosperity can be restored. A people who have resorted to drugs out of fear of losing their restaurants are no longer capable of regaining their freedom and making the necessary effort.

Answer Universe

Yes, you're right: the next world they envision is one of slavery for all and wealth for themselves. They have no intention of rebuilding for the people. It's simply about making people work like slaves again, while they steal everything that was left standing.

Your vision is too simplistic to be honest; it allows you to avoid making consistent analyses. It cannot be denied that the population has not risen to the occasion, but this implacable verdict, which subjects everyone to your wrath, coupled with a peremptory assertion about what the future holds, proves that you are part of the problem you claim to denounce.

As reported in the press:

A climate fanatic is proposing a project, and to increase his chances of obtaining the funding for its implementation, claims that the height of the oceans will increase by 1,10 m by 2100.
Many sheep and pigeons will finance his scam, because by 2100 this guy will be long dead, his project will be in place, but for nothing, because the oceans will not have risen an inch!

We should start by decarbonizing parasitic leaders and politicians.
As a bonus, it would be good for our overall "carbon footprint" and for the planet.
